History

Planning

Six Flags Great America made previous plans to build a Dive Coaster, a model from manufacturer Bolliger & Mabillard (B&M), at the park. However, the park sought to build a more intense Dive Coaster, so their original Dive Coaster plans were sent to Six Flags Fiesta Texas in San Antonio, Texas, where it opened in 2022 and currently operates as Dr. Diabolical's Cliffhanger.^{[1][2]}

On May 28, 2024, the park's parent company, Six Flags, had filed a trademark with the United States Patent and Trademark Office for the name "Wrath of Rakshasa."^{[3][4]} On July 18, 2024, the park began a teaser campaign named "#FearTheWrath," revealing cryptic clues about the park's 2025 attraction. #FearTheWrath banners were located on fences around the former Buccaneer Battle site; demolition had begun around the same time.^{[4][5][6]} Many speculated a new roller coaster, as the park's previous roller coaster installation, Maxx Force, had opened six years earlier, marking the longest gap between coaster additions throughout the park's history.^{[4][7]}

The park announced construction of Wrath of Rakshasa on August 15, 2024.^{[8][9][10][11]} A custom designed Dive Coaster manufactured by Bolliger & Mabillard, it would be set to be built in the County Fair area of the park, on the plot of the former Buccaneer Battle water ride.^{[12][13][14]} It was also revealed that the ride would feature lockers and an exit gift shop.^[15] It would be the fifth operating Bolliger & Mabillard roller coaster at the park, and the park's sixth collaboration with the manufacturer.^[16]

Construction and opening

Construction of the ride in October 2024.

Construction on the ride started during the park's Halloween event, Fright Fest, in the fall, blocking off the pathway between the park's Hometown Square and County Fair themed sections for the remainder of the season.^[14] Track for the ride started arriving at the park in mid-October 2024, with the first piece of track being installed in December.^{[17][18]} On January 21, 2025, the park provided an animated point-of-view video of the ride.^[19] The ride's 180-foot-tall (55 m) lift hill was topped off in early-February 2025.^[20] A month later, in March 2025, the last piece of track was installed.^[21]

On April 16, 2025, prior to the park's opening for that season, the park revealed that the roller coaster had completed its full test cycle, although without the holding brake.^[22] Media day to introduce the roller coaster was held on May 22, 2025, with the official opening date announced that same date, slated for May 31.^[23] The ride had a soft opening for select season pass holders on May 30, 2025,^[12] and the ride officially opened to the public a day later on May 31, 2025.^{[24][25]}
